GOAL LINE INTERCEPTION IN CLOSING SECONDS FINISHES SEAHAWKS

DREW PERINE Staff photographer

Seahawks coach Pete Carroll slumps over in frustration after quarterback Russell Wilson's pass was intercepted at the New England goal line with 20 seconds remaining in Super Bowl 49. Seattle failed in its bid to win consecutive Super Bowls despite leading 24-14 after three quarters and having the ball first-and-goal at the Patriots' 5 with 1:06 remaining.
